C., From a Professional Gentleman of Edinburg My Lord, I had the honour of addressing your Lordship upon a former occasion, with the view not only of pointing out the causes of the distress that then so generally prevailed in this country, but also of suggesting a remedy which appeared to me at the time adequate to the removal of that distress. I do not mean, upon this occasion, to intrude upon your Lordship any further observations upon that plan; but I feel impelled again to address your Lordship, for the purpose of pointing out, in what I hope may be a clear and satisfactory manner, not merely the propriety, but the absolute necessity, of making more minute inquiry into the present state of the country than has yet been done, and adopting such mode of relief as may be considered efficient in reestablishing that equilibrium in the rights and property of the different classes of society, which have been so much deranged, and which apparently are approaching to a state of still further derangement. The subject of this inquiry is of a complicated nature, and it is possible I may altogether fail in the object I have in view; but, even if this were to be the case, I may yet have the good fortune to suggest some views and considerations that may be of use to an enlightened politician who has the inclination and the power to take the...
